SKILLS & SERVICES

Anne's specialty is in personal development and team building. She has a natural ability for creating rapport and therefore brings trust to any business relationship. She is an excellent facilitator, being aware both of the group dynamic and recognising the significance each individual has in that group.

Anne has an eclectic background that ranges from theatre and the arts to personal development and management. She has a talent of synthesis and synchronicity, bringing together her varied abilities with an emphasis on others getting the most out of learning and enjoying that process. She takes pleasure in seeing people change for the better and finding inventive ways for them to do that.

Anne is passionate about customer service and how an understanding of personality and the make-up of a team can enhance the experience of the customer. Her enthusiasm for doing a good job and maintaining and growing successful relationships with clients is readily communicated to those she works with and those she trains.
